

Susan Fort

Susan Fort is a committed member of the Chesapeake Sustainable Business Alliance (CSBA) working as the chair of the food committee that encourages information sharing around local and sustainable foodways. Primary food committee projects include monthly meet ups that feature local food businesses and promote green education for businesses and consumers, a healthy school meals initiative in Baltimore City, and a Buy Fresh, Buy Local Chesapeake campaign. She helped launch CSBA after attending a national conference of the Business Alliance for Local Living Economies (BALLE) in May 2004.

Susan is an educator with experience in the for profit, nonprofit, and government sectors. Since August 2005, she has worked with Greater Homewood Community Corporation as an Assistant Director of Public Education Programs, marshaling and mobilizing resources that help set the conditions for children to learn at their best in six Baltimore City public schools. She has a BA in French and International Studies from Guilford College in Greensboro, NC, and M Ed from Cambridge College, Cambridge, MA.
